Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 28 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Mostly dry tonight. Frequent showers and sunny spells on Thursday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Showers, some heavy, will continue for a time this evening before easing into the night, leaving clear skies overnight for most. Showers may continue in far western areas. Feeling cold, with frost forming in rural areas. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Thursday:
Dry and sunny initially, before patchy cloud and scattered showers develop through the day, heaviest along the south coast and far west. Showers easing through the evening. Feeling cool. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Sunny spells and frequent, occasionally heavy, showers each day. Daytime temperatures cool but gradually warming. Largely dry and clear overnight, with a continued chance of rural frosts.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.